

Abstract

The invention relates to an injection element (10), in particular for a rocket drive, with an inner element and an outer element arranged coaxially thereto (12, 14) for receiving and injecting fuel into a combustion space. According to the 5 invention the outer element (14) has bores (16) for forming a cooling liquid film layer.

(Fig. 1A)